More than 1000 school children from the U.S. submitted their best riddles as part of a nationwide contest. The 32 winning riddles presented here--one for each letter of the alphabet--offer interesting views of school from a child's perspective. Like the other books in the series, these rhyming riddles will entice young readers to learn how sounds and letters combine to form words. The bold, semi-abstract illustrations add to the fun. These books are a great way for parents and teachers to help beginning readers develop phonemic awareness, a key component in mastering reading. This book also features a page at the end with "Ideas for Parents and Teachers."
