Corki Brown has been cheated on, abused, and lied to, blamed, shamed, duped, run over, pissed on, spat on, and damned to hell - all in the name of working as a celebrity "chore whore". But she's finally had it. Working for multiple celebrities at a time for nearly fifteen years, she reaches a breaking point when tasks begin to border on the surreal and her ten-year-old son starts picking up on some very strange habits. So she devises a plan to get away and save her life, her family, and her sanity. Heather Howard uses her vast experience as a Hollywood personal assistant to create a heartfelt story that parodies all of your favourite stars.
