Psychologist Robin Land is being stalked. Struggling to build her career as a family therapy clinician, Robin is faced with the choice of exploring her family secrets or moving on in order to keep the family peace. As evidence mounts that the deaths of her loved ones may have been murders, Loma Prieta Detective Romo, the man with whom she is falling in love, presses on in an investigation of her family history even while Robin is dealing with a patient's family in a life-threatening crisis. Will her education and experience as a clinical psychologist equip her for dealing with her fear and this deadly quagmire so she can save her own life and the lives of her sister and patient?
