It's Brynne's birthday, but because it is June, Brynne is confused when her Grandma hands her a package decked in holiday bows. Out spills fabric of green and red--a birthday gift for her and a Christmas gift for a child in a far away land. Each day Brynne goes to Grandma's house to learn to quilt, and as they sew, Grandma tells Brynne of Christmases past, including the first when a baby was born in a lonely stable. But Brynne's parents have a Christmas surprise of their own--the quilt she is making is for her new baby brother
