Set on a Louisiana sugarcane plantation in the 1970s, A Gathering of Old Men is a powerful depiction of racial tensions arising over the death of a Cajun farmer at the hands of a black man.

"Poignant, powerful, earthy...a novel of Southern racial confrontation in which a group of elderly black men band together against whites who seek vengeance for the murder of one of their own."-- Booklist

"A fine novel...there is a denouement that will shock and move readers as much as it does the characters."-- Philadelphia Inquirer

The novel uses multiple narrators. It shows not only a segregation and racism between white and black, but also represents the racism in black community, as well as the conflict between technology process and traditional rural southern life.
