Stan Stanton and partner Sandra Hawkins receive an assignment from Lloyds Insurance of London to investigate why two prominent heads of an international development corporation have met violent deaths under the strangest of circumstances. The unusual happenings appear to stretch from Piccadilly of London to Port of Spain, Trinidad, with hypnosis and voodoo devil worship as their nucleus. It is in the Western Hemisphere that our dynamic duo, find themselves at the mercy of the hot sun and the violent, obscene rituals they encounter. Surviving with the help of a British secret service agent, they return to London to learn that the entire situation involved developing of an alternate fuel for domestic use in lieu of Middle East oil. Uncovering terrorists in South America, our skillful pair provide the expertise needed to solve the case, but not until they themselves experience the local magnificence and allure of Caracas, Venezuela. Sit back and allow yourself to enter an alternate atmosphere of thrills, pulse-stimulating excitement and laughter. The adventure is only a few pages away.
