Ten-year-old Amanda has been everywhere and done everything. Or so she thinks. Her parents have taken her to all the cities of the world: London, Paris, Hong Kong . . . So when she comes to Cleveland on a visit, her reaction is: B-o-o-o-ring. "What's so big about Cleveland, Ohio?" she sneers to her host, ten-year-old Alan. Nothing is as big, or as famous, or as fast, or as fun as something else she's done somewhere else. Until, that is, she discovers something special about Cleveland, Ohio--something she didn't expect at all.
