It's MTV's Real World meets high-stakes college admissions as six high school seniors share the diaries they wrote during one of life's more harrowing periods: getting into a great college. Will they get into their dream school? How will the choices they make in high school affect their chances? How will they manage all the demands of senior year without completely losing their minds? In these compelling narratives you'll read about every worry, hope, heartbreak, and celebration along the road to college. Students and parents can learn from these stories how to address their own hopes and fears about one of life's biggest dramas.
