A lively behind-the-scenes look at prep school life and underlife.. Why do private boarding schools produce such a disproportionate number of leaders in business, government, and the arts? In the most comprehensive study of its kind to date, two sociologists describe the complex ways in which elite schools prepare students for success and power, and they also provide a lively behind-the-scenes look at preschool life and underlife.

When ascending to the so-called higher class, one is basically fitting himself to an established model. That process is forcing one to give up any attempt to revise or change most of the things within itself. Is there any kind of education that doesn't deprive one's individuality, but still makes happy, wise and materially satisfied persons?
