With the increasing trends of inclusive classrooms, high-stakes accountability for teachers and administration, and earlier identification of students with special needs, it is vital that both general and special education teachers know how to write and implement effective individualized education plans (IEPs). In order to learn how to write and implement plans you need to understand the process. Using observation videos, interactive quizzes, tutorials reflection activities, IEP forms, and a wealth of additional resources such as relevant articles and web links related to education topics related to IEPs, this interactive, step-by-step CD will help students to better understand the IEP process by showing them how to put this knowledge into practice.
