Ages 6 to 12 years. This book follows the growth of a tree from the time it sprouts to the time it is mature and capable of producing new seeds. The complex lives of these everyday plants will startle and delight young readers. Stunning photographs and illustrations accompany clear explanations of: how seeds are produced; how different types of seeds look; the role of various trees in a forest; how trees benefit animals, people, and the environment; how children can help trees in their neighbourhood and around the world.
