Life for a young Deinonychus (a raptor) is filled with challenges. He must hunt for food, negotiate his place in the tribe hierarchy, attract and mate and deal with predators and natural disasters. We see our Deinonychus go from young raptor to leader of his pack, 100 million years ago. In richly detailed and colourful illustrations, Rich Penney dramatically imagines the events of a raptor's life. These are no lifeless museum skeletons - these raptors are colourful, active and scarily realistic.
