At Christmas time in Northern Saskatchewan, three Cree kids - Talon, Raven and

T-Bear, who have never lived in the bush - visit their Moshum's (grandfather's) cabin to learn about traditional ways and experience a life-changing adventure. Talon, Raven, and T-Bear, who have never lived in the bush, visit their Moshum's cabin to prepare for Christmas and to learn about traditional ways. But food is scarce this year, and Moshum is afraid Christmas may have to be cancelled. The kids decide to help by going hunting, but they don't understand how unprepared they are or what danger they're in. They get lost, forcing Moshum to come after them. But when they find him collapsed in the bush, it is the children who have to bring Moshum safely home. The experience helps them to grow in skill and understanding and to become more mature. Their parents come and Christmas isn't cancelled, in fact it's a wonderful, warm celebration, filled with music and feasting. T-Bear, Talon, and Ravon learn that they can benefit from two kinds of knowledge - traditional learning through their elders and the things they learn in school.
