Take an exciting behind-the-scenes look at making movies and television shows with author and industry expert Lisa O'Brien. Not just for aspiring actors, "Lights, Camera, Action " gives a realistic insider's view of the world behind the silver screen and small screen. From screenplay to the premiere, you'll meet the many people involved in a production, including producer and screen writer, director and cinematographer, editor and many more. All the people who make the magic happen are introduced in this comprehensive introduction to movies and television. You'll even meet the foley artist, who uses imagination and everyday objects to enhance sounds on screen, for example snapping celery stalks for the sound of bones breaking. Follow a young actor as he goes from finding an agent to playing a leading movie role to giving interviews for a publicity tour. Highlighted "Director's Notes" offer useful advice that expands acting into important understandings of real life. Kids will have fun with the "Action " activities, including improvising scenes and making faces. "Popcorn Quizzes" offer fascinating trivia about the industry, such as "How long does it take to shoot a half-hour television show?" and "Who invented the movie camera?" Other features include a list of further reading resources, glossaries to dose each chapter, and information on areas such as cartoon voice-overs and acting on stage. A terrific book for young people considering working in the field or for anyone who loves movies and television and wants an understanding of these media, or just for fun After reading this book, kids and parents will enjoy identifying some previously unknown elements of their favorite shows, while appreciating the production that happens behind the production.
