Thousands of new members sign up every second and billions of items are traded everyday. Pretty well all new members are daunted by the apparent complexities of signing up and entering their first auction. They need help. This is the book for entry-level wannabe traders. It should become a classic because it is so well thought out and carefully constructed in bite-sized pieces. The author developed his skills writing step-by-step guides for Phillips Consumer Products and he's fool-proof! Finally, it is of UK origin and deals with everything from our point of view. That's a very serious consideration for entry-level players in such a strongly driven American scene.
