The authors' research shows that the successful leader excels in three separate but related dimensions:

- * Anticipate: detecting and responding to “weak signals” to “get ahead of the curve.”
- * Align: achieving congruence in your own values and desires and those of others.
- * Act: making things happen.

Tools and frameworks are provided so that readers can apply what they have read to their own business situations. Each chapter is self-sufficient, with its own set of principles illustrated by stories and its own set of tools designed to help you implement the principles.
