This is a true-life story written by the wife of a soldier serving in Iraq. It is a colorful, heartbreaking but always inspiring account of how military life affected one family and how it affects all military families. Michelle Keener describes the trials and triumphs of keeping a military family together from wedding, her husband's assignment to Iraq, the birth of their daughter at the base hospital. The uncertainty and fear of living with daily media reports on Iraq are brought vividly to life, as is the shared grief over the death of a friend's husband, and the elation of one's own husband return safely. With this book Keener gives a voice to all military wives who serve by waiting.
