Claude Monet first learned to paint as a young man growing up in the French region of Normandy. Over the course of his career he returned to the area time and again, capturing on canvas its dramatic coastline, picturesque villages, and seaside resorts. Accompanies a major exhibition traveling to the Fine Arts Museums of San Francisco, the North Carolina Museum of Art, and The Cleveland Museum of Art. Many rarely seen images on loan from private and public collections across the United States, Europe, and Japan. Exquisite image reproductions supervised by organizing museums, of a quality superior to many other Monet products available. Contains more than thirty masterworks. Heavy-stock cards are attached to the book with a perforated edge and may be easily removed for mailing or to post on a wall.
