In her autobiography, Bridge to the Sun, Gwen Terasaki depicts her life as the wife of a Japanese diplomat and Quaker pacifist, Hidenari Terasaki, in China during the early years of their marriage and in Tokyo during World War II. The book starts with the bombing of Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941, and moves by flashback to the early years of the Terasakis' marriage in the 1930's. The main body of the text concerns the Terasaki family's years of privation in Japan during the war and Hidenari's role as adviser to General Douglas MacArthur during...
