Young Maura Conlon's dad is a secret agent. And Maura knows what that means: hunting down the Ten Most Wanted for J. Edgar Hoover, interviewing perps and keeping track of all sorts of criminals, just like on TV. Desperate to infiltrate her father's world, Maura decides to become an FBI girl-in-training, reading Nancy Drew, watching the FBI on TV and keeping her own secret journal. But it takes the birth of a Downs Syndrome baby and a family tragedy before she finds the courage to confront her dad. A tale of a father/daughter relationship, SHE'S ALL EYES is about family bonds, the trials that test them and the triumphs that make them stronger.
