Why do people who seem to have everything risk it all for more? And are their cases just instances of individual deviance, or do they represent a more widespread corruption of values? Explore these issues, and more, with "Current Perspectives: Readings from Infotrac College Edition: White Collar Crime". Edited by Nicole Leeper Piquero of the University of Florida - Gainesville, this accessible reader includes timely articles on one of the most puzzling criminal phenomena of our era. The selections examine these questions from a variety of psychological and sociological perspectives.

Along with the reader, you receive access to "InfoTrac[registered] College Edition", which you can use to create your own online reader with InfoMarks.
