Designed to meet the needs of undergraduate students in sociology and social anthropology, Global Structures, Local Cultures examines the process of globalisation and its impact on modern society. Case studies drawn from around the world are used effectively to assist students to develop new ways of thinking about the historical and contemporary connections between societies and cultures. The major sociological concepts and theoretical frameworks are outlined clearly and positioned contextually alongside fields such as gender, ethnicity, religion, migration, indigenous peoples, tourism, and social movements.
