UCLA has long been known as the school that coach John Wooden, the "Wizard of Westwood," built into a national basketball powerhouse. But do you know about William Spaulding, the coach who put Bruins' football on the national map? Or Red Sanders, the man who led the school to its first national championship? Those men and more are featured among Chris Roberts' colorful and entertaining stories about the history of UCLA football. Join Roberts as he shows how the Bruins' athletic heritage extends beyond the hardwood to the gridiron.
