The truth in true crime lies in the details. But one should be suspicious of authors who know the details too well. I'm deeply suspicious of Russell Gould and extremely impressed. This is much more than an anthology of merely unsolved cases'. Peter Sotos, author of Index and contributor to Apocalypse Culture. The Black Dahlia. JonBenet Ramsey. PC Keith Blakelock. Rachel Nickell. Tupac Shakur and Biggie Smalls. Their killers are still out there somewhere. These, and several other compelling cases, make up this study of the most puzzling murders of the late twentieth century. Could six-year-old beauty queen JonBenet Ramsey really have been killed by a member of her own family? Were British government agencies responsible for the murder of activist Hilda Murrell? How could the Zodiac killer's reign of terror continue unchecked for so long? Exhaustively researched, this book draws upon all of the evidence - and all of the theories - to bring you the definitive, uncensored account of these unsolved crimes.
