Continuing to provide realistic journaling options for our on-the-go times, Rumpf conceived of the idea of a mutual diary to initiate a dialogue between herself and her uncommunicative ten-year-old son. She soon found that she and her son had created a forum for discussing what was too hard to voice aloud. Because "Just Between You and Me" acts as an intermediary, no subject is off-limits. The journal features plenty of writing space, along with suggested topics, resources, and a personal letter from Rumpf describing the journal's genesis and use.
