This are the memoirs of a West Point graduate and former Green Beret officer who served in Vietnam. During a mortar attack on the Dak To camp, he suffered injuries that resulted in the loss of both legs. Following his painful recovery - which took over a year - Clark gained an MBA, and became personal assistant to Ross Perot. From there, he went on to work in a number of high-profile public service positions. He founded the Combat Faith Ministry in 2003 to help other war veterans. His story of growth and fulfillment is an inspirational testament to the resilience of the human spirit.
