It's 1949, and Nathan Heller, president of the A-1 Detective Agency of Chicago, has been called to Washington, D.C., by retiring Secretary of Defense James Forrestal. Forrestal fears for his life, and it's up to Nate to find out who wants him dead. Along the way, Nate's investigation becomes intertwined with the mysterious sighting of a UFO in Roswell, New Mexico. How are these seemingly unrelated cases related? The tenth novel in Max Allan Collins's highly acclaimed Nathan Heller series, Majic Man is a mystery wrapped in a political thriller--filled with Collins's characteristically sharp wit and breezy, realistic style.

* Seven books from the Nathan Heller series have been nominated for the Shamus award, two of which have won for Best Novel

* Max Allan Collins is the bestselling author of many movie tie-ins, most notably Saving Private Ryan and Air Force One

"Highly entertaining . . . snappy dialogue and jet-paced action."--The Los Angeles Times (on Flying Blind)

"No one can twist you through a maze with as much intensity and suspense as Max Allan Collins."--Clive Cussler, bestselling author of Flood Tide (on Flying Blind)
