《一个外交家的经历(韩叙传英文版)》主要内容：Han Xu, the man who stands out as the preeminent symbol of friendship in my life-time experience with diplomats, died July 19 in a Beijing hospital after a long bout with cancer. In his death the American people lost a good friend.

In the first address to an American audience by a diplomat of the People's Republic of China, Han Xu urged the 1978 graduates of Illinois College in Jacksonville to reach out cordially to people in other countries and to pass the spirit of friendship from one generation to another. He carried this message eloquently and effectively all of his long productive and eventful life.
