'No civilization, no matter how mighty it may appear to itself, is indestructible.' –Niall Ferguson

'We do not need to invent the world anew. The international order established by the United States after World War II is in need of expansion and repair, but not reconception.' –Fareed Zakaria

Across the Western world more and more countries are looking inwards – national borders reasserted, national interests re-emphasised and nationalism on the rise once again. Fears of a globalized world are rampant. Could this be the end of the liberal international order?
