This book of photographs by Gerhard Labudda presents nature from a strikingly individual viewpoint: here, photography meets painting. Labudda's studies of nature are assured pictorial sketches of a fascinating range of motifs. His camera work adheres to the strict aesthetics of Wabi philosophy, the Japanese language of form. Impressive views of the north of Hamburg are juxtaposed with detailed studies of natural structures. Colours and forms, pictures from a distant world, transform concrete and familiar objects into cosmic, metaphysical dimensions.
