Spanning five decades of Chinese history, Wives Of The East Wind is an epic tale of friendships, love, and idealism betrayed. Two couples—Wenya and Zhiying, Zhenzhen and Laoyin—meet, marry and become inseparable just as China is shaking off the memory of war, and the brightest of its youth are pledging themselves to building a vibrant new future. Yet for all that their lives embody the ideals of the young republic, they are spared none of the suffering and hardship that are to follow, through years of famine and the terror of the Cultural Revolution. It is the two women who form the most powerful bond, and Wenya’s loyalty and Zhenzhen’s spirit sustain them both through their darkest hours. And as a new, more affluent China dawns and the struggle for survival gives way to an equally fierce battle to protect the values closest to their hearts, Zhenzhen teaches Wenya an unforgettable lesson about courage.

作者介绍:

Liu Hong was born in 1965 and grew up in the north-eastern province of Liaoning, near the Chinese-North Korean border.
