A set of ten postcards: humorous, absurd, grotesque, thoughtful, provocative . . . the right motif for every occasion!

Frank Kunert (*1963 in Frankfurt/Main) literally builds a house for his ideas by staging them in small, model-size settings. With unbelievable meticulousness, he goes to great lengths working out details and staging, until everything looks deceptively real. The resulting photographs are not simply illustrations of true-to-life imitations of reality—on the contrary! In a cryptic and sensitive manner, Kunert breaks with reality altogether.

We are pleased to be able to offer Kunert's humorous, droll, grotesque, thoughtful, and provocative motifs in sets of ten postcards.
