Jack and Jill uses rhymes and repetition to tell the story of a boy, a girl, and their dog\'s repeated trips up a snowy hill and sled rides down again. Lively, full-color drawings illustrate the action in both books. Large print, repetitive word use, and a predictable pattern make these titles suitable for beginning readers. Lisa Smith, Lindenhurst Memorial Library, NY Copyright 2002 Reed Business Information, Inc. From Booklist Gr. 1. Beginning readers will find this an amusing and relatively easy book in the Early Step into Reading series. Two small children, Jack and Jill, and their large dog, Bill, struggle up and slide down a snow-covered hillside on their sled. Each time they are poised at the top and ready to go, a rabbit distracts Bill and comical chaos ensues on the downhill run. Like many beginning-reader texts, this tells a simple story in easy words. Unlike most, its rhythms and rhymes reflect the action and pacing to help move the story along. Weston's jaunty, colorful illustrations give the book a cheerful look that will appeal to young children. Carolyn Phelan Copyright © American Library Association.
