Unique problems require unique solutions. This book examines the unique, but not mysterious, institution of marriage, and presents solutions to help resolve the marital conflicts that so often arise.

For over 58 years, the author has served as teacher, minister, chaplain and counselor to thousands. Having traveled in over 38 nations of the world, he has had the opportunity to study the marriage customs of many cultures. He has been a marriage and family life counselor for over 35 years.

Drawing from his wealth of experience, the author shares with you the proven principles he has discovered to guide new relationships and heal damaged ones.

Illustrations from his 55-year union with his wife Bonnie Ruth ("that woman" I married) provide humorous "insight into the lighter side of living with "that man" or "that woman."
