Author's Note

I want to thank those who have been tireless in their assistance in the preparation of this book. Anita Sullivan and Lynette Mitchell have been gracious enough to read and reread these pages and give their thoughts and corrections. I am especially grateful for Barbara Gibson who meticulously proofed the text and prepared comments for me on the content. I am thankful for the comments of my friend, Mary Harker, who took time out of her schedule to read and respond to the text at my request. I wish to thank my family who found me up sometimes at two or three in the morning because I had a thought I could not wait to put on paper. Their patience has been most welcome.
