The man without a face. Without fingerprints. Who was he? Who murdered him so viciously, so unspeakably? And why, suddenly, is there a rash of patient deaths at the prestigious Los Angeles hospital---mysterious deaths for which there is no explicable cause?

These are questions confounding Dr. Joanna

Blalock, a leading forensic pathologist, as she tries to piece together the faceless man's identity through computer technology and her own desperate guesswork. When Joanna finally identifies the man, she is stunned to discover a connection between his brutal murder and the other dead patients.

Something is wrong. Terribly wrong. And little by little, with the help of her former lover, homicide detective Jake Sinclair, Joanna begins to collect horrifying clues to this nightmare. But as they pile up, each points in a different direction. The great hospital she always respected has been shot through with suspicion and scandal, and everyone seems to have something to hide. But most chilling of all, Joanna is being drawn into a game of deceit and death with an unseen enemy who knows that she has already discovered too much. An enemy who has killed not once but many times. An enemy who is privy to all the intricacies of the medical system. An enemy who is after her life, too., closing in on her., leaving her nowhere to run., no place to hide., no one to trust
