This is a book for the amateur theatre ,written specifically for non-professional producers and designers of dramatic groups who wish to achieve the highest standards of stage technique but with the minimum of materials,stage dimensions,and finance and, perhaps,also without the help of skilled technicians.Although there is an irresistible magnetism to the black-stage of theatre,some knowledge of theatrical working practice is needed for all those actities that go towards the complexity of a stage production,and a lack of this knowledge is one of the resons many amateur productions fail.
