To Italy at Fift)
I Newhaven-Dieppe
Inside the salt-rimmed ship a crush of school-children suck straws
spit pips carryhlg their curiosity and garbage to another shore.
Above dark anoraks lank hair co-mingles
with die smell of hard-boiled eggs and Channel fog.
Along the slanting decks crushed cigarettes like slugs slide to the blurred grey waves.
The voices sluri
the enghxes mumble thoughts criss-cross like wire abrasive oll the air s damp skin or lie and stare punch-drtu~k with adolescent melancholy at unravelled clouds.
Beyond the rail slack seas shake and revoke each last connection with faint families.
Il Urbino: Madonna by Piero della Francesca
In grey disguise her slant hieratic eyes gaze out at us untroubled by our want.
Their hard serene composure shares a diamond world where fight is kalowhig; pure median to the pendulum swxhg of time her heart stands still. This child is not from her¼Œ but plucked from life displays
