If Death
Muse-touched today
I thought how strange
if death should take me
here
now
with half my honors
on
with half my years
unchilded
loved
well loved & half
believing in a god of
love
as I did not before
oh say
half my life ago.
I would give
up in peace.
I would go quietly
& not protest my youth (which anyway tarnishes daily)
nor my gift (which and Vay is only a way of saying: thank you
life
hello death);
& not protest my rank
unreadiness.
I
am ready. Whenever the branch breaks
whenever the film slips
in the
sprockets
whenever the light
hisses & burns out
whenever
the
lightning strikes
or the ice
slithers me across
into the oncoming traffic lane
headlights blaring like the head of God
