Behold the Great Food Processors . those dream machines that exemplify our speed-and-luxury-oriented way of life. Delivered from the twelve-hour day our ancestors endured bequeathed the four-day week we toll neither do we hand-chop mince or purée. Our bread doughs are almost magically kneaded into submission. Our duxelles practically hash themselves. Our g6noises bubble into being within the sturdy tracery of our mechanized wire whisks. The legend of the great food processors typifies this unique time when speed-machines (witness the pocket calculator) infiltrate our family lives as never before. No incongruity exists between this and our trend toward a more natural and self-sufficient way of life. Our machines make it practical for the first time for us to bypass processed-supermarket and freezerpackaged restaurant foods. We can munch fresh home-bakedï¼ preservative-free breadsï¼ machine-grind our own grains into flourï¼ eat the highest-quality gourmet foods at homeï¼ and do so with a minimum (after the initial outlay) of expense. For strange as it may seemï¼ gourmet cooking and savings do go hand in pocket.
