The Salespeople
Always Called Me J
Whether you re young or old black or white classy or poor single or married extrovert or can learn to be an assertive woman. In my own aged the switch from the mouse I was to the mouse I dreamed of being--but never dared to try--was forty had spent twenty-one years in the same job time of rationalizing "If I do this he/she won't My particular history of "patsyism" hood. My mother brainwashed me. She brought fairy stories where heroines neither toiled nor coveted by handsome princes. Her particular Lewis Carroll's Classic Sylvie and Bruno in which he must choose between "All must love Sylvie will love all." So I grew up feelfng that I mustand that everyone must love me. Mother had certain inviolate ideas which shme. Girls were supposed to be ladylikei¼ turn tl~whenever conflict occurredi¼ \ "not be selfishi¼ \ " antthree objectives: popularityi¼ a college degreei¼other dictum was \ "Please men.\ " That meantyou were \ "too intelligent\ " or \ "too strong.\ "
