CHAPTER 1
makes of movement.
 The pilot flicked open a map and held it on his knee to study. He beckoned to the passenger who had slumped angrily in one of the seats. Jumping up¼ the passenger threaded his way impatiently through piles of glossy luggage and peered down at the map. He jabbed a blunt forefinger--cherished by the manicurist--down on the pilot s knee.
The pilot bent forward and looked carefully at the spot indicated on the map. He nodded his head up and down with puppet-like explicitness.
 He smiled and pointed downwards about a mile ahead of them.
