Nonset~e ot long ago I was spinning the channel selector on our television set and pau~d momentarily to watch the ;~11 New Newlywed Game.\" It was a bad decision. Bob Eubanksi¼Œ the leering hosti¼Œ posed a series of dumb questions to a lineup of flaky brides whose husbands were \"sequestered backstage in a soundproof room.\" He challenged the women to predict their husband's responses to inquiries that went something like this: \"Where was the exact spot your husband saw you stark naked for the first time?\" \"If you and your husband ever separatedi¼Œ which of his friends would be the first to make a pass at you?\" \"How would you describe the first time you and your husband made whoopee using these TV terms: First Runi¼Œ Reruni¼Œ or Cancelled?\" \"Where is the last place you would havei¼Œ if you could havei¼Œ made love?\" Without the least hesitationi¼Œ the women blurted out frank answers to these and other intimate questions. At times I felt I shouldn t be watchingi¼Œ and indeedi¼Œ past generations would have blushed and gasped at the candor. But
