Chapter 1
"I think this is a big mistake," Donny, leaving beautiful Sorrento for these wild-looking hills and mountains," Cathleen Ryan Belardo said to her husband. Then after he didn't answer soon enough to her satisfaction, she asked, "Are you sure that gas station attendant near Salerno said the second gravel road after Pignola? Your Montenuovo isn't even on this atlas map. Really, why do we have to leave this nice, secure, paved road? Can't we go back to Sorrento before it's too late, and we get totally lost?"
"No, Irish, we're not going back. The guy said to avoid going into Potenza and to hang a right at the interchange, then head south. It's the second gravel road to our left, about halfway to Anzi, after the Pignola turnoff, which would be to our right."
After a pause, Donato "Donny" Belardo added,

"Will you listen to me? I sound like a regular tour guide with diarrhea of the mouth."
"That's the catch!" Donny. How far is halfway? This road hasn't exactly been loaded with signs.
"The guy should know what he's talking about. He said he was from the Potenza area of Basilicata which--by the way--is also known by its original Latin name Lucania." Then after
