/~everyone in Larchmont knew that Heidi was a (--- ~tramp the day she came home from the hospital. At that point in her life it wasn't the rubber pants that gave her away¼ or even the fact that when someone picked her up for burping¼ she blew in his ear. Let me put it this way: She did things with her pacifier that most women still haven't done with their husbands. Is that a tramp¼ or what?
 It was almost unthinkable that we would ever become friends¼ especially to my mother. She considered anyone who wore open-toed shoes an exhibitionist.
 Heidi and I were so unlike. I mean¼ when I had diaper rash¼ she had herpes. I'd fuss about going to bed; she'd hit the mattress the minute someone un-
