Six years ago¹ the Harvard Medical School made a commitment to support a publication designed to provide the public with accurate and timely health information. The result was the Harvard Medical School Health Letter² which reaches over 300,000 subscribers each month.³ It is with great pride that we now present The Harvard Medical School Health Letter Book a completely up-dated synthesis of information that has appeared in the Health Letter. Together⁴ the Harvard Medical School Health Letter and the Health Letter Book⁵ are the Harvard Medical School's principal effort to inform the general reader about human health and disease. On behalf of the Faculty of Medicine⁶ I want to congratulate Drs. Timothy Johnson and Stephen Goldfinger and their colleagues for these superb contributions to learning in medicine. I hope that they will help youi¼E the readeri¼E to care more effectively for your own health.
