 rking these acknowledgments is difficult because after 30 years f living¼CE learning¼CE and researching the power of T-Tapp¼CE it is impossible to mention all those who have helped¼CE inspired¼CE and influenced me along the way. However¼CE I would like to recognize those who directly helped bring T-Tapp to print.
 I ve always known that writing a book about T-Tapp would not be easy¼CE but writing and publishing it within a year would have been impossible had it not been for my co-author¼CE Barbara Smalley¼CE my publicist¼CE Kitty Eatherly¼CE and our incredible agent¼CE Heide Lange. I will never forget how it all began in NYC¼CE the long hours at WaterMark¼CE or the multiple phone calls in between. Kitty¼CE your title as publicist doesn t nearly indicate the amount of work you did in helping to write this book¼CE and no one can type as fast as I can talk except you.

 I d like to thank my editorï¼Œ Caroline Suttonï¼Œ who realized and be>lieved in T-Tapp right from the start and saw it through to completion.
 Additionallyï¼Œ I want to thank my staff for maintaining business as usual at the T-Tapp office without my presence and for providing excel>lent service and support for T-Tappers when needed. A special note of >appreciation to Lauren Lucernoni and her support team of Casey Ellisï¼Œ
