this volume has been supported 8rants from a variety of agencies over the last decade:
The:~rimt Foundation; the National Foundation March of Dimes; National Institute of Child Health and Human Develop~t; the Graduate School of the University of Illinois; and the Fund of Philadelphia. A number of persons have con~ttnt in important ways to the research program at theUniversity of Wisconsin, the Fels Research Institute, the Univer- of Cincinnati College of Medicine, and most recently the~versity of Illinois.
Sandra O Leary was an important earlyildlaborator. Douglas Sawin, my friend and co-worker at Fels Cincinnati, gave wisdom, effort, and moral support. At l1~tl~ots,

Thomas Power and Barbara Tinsley have been active in research on fathers. Steve Asher made helpful comments on early chapters of this book, and Graeme Russell provided useful material and insights for the final chapter. Special thanks to Barbara Tinsley for encouragement and detailed feedback at all of the writing. The book was completed when I was a Research Scholar at Macquarie University in Australia; I am grateful to Jacqueline Goodnow for the opportunity to visit work there. Eric Wanner was generous with encouragement editorial guidance, and Camille Smith edited the final draft skill. Elaine Babb deserves a special appreciation for tracking down numerous obscure statistics and references, and Brent U Congdon and Eileen Posluszny did a fine job of preparing the manuscript. Thanks, too, to my wife, Sue, and my children, Tim, Timothy, and Megan, for their support and advice during the writing of the book. Finally, I want to express my thanks father researchers and to the many families who have tried to be studied to help us learn about fathers and father-
