Do you know which is the best book on cacti, or bromeliads, or begonias? Where the nearest horticultural library or public garden is? How to re-pot an orchid, start a seed, grow tomatoes in your window, or propagate a fern? How to begin a career in horticulture? Where to buy a window greenhouse? Who manufactures a clear, lucite watering can in the shape of a swan? The Green Pages puts the answers to these questions and much, much more - right at your fingertips. Here is an A to Z guide through the maze of information that has unfolded as people have become more involved with plants. For example, well-known garden experts have furnished concise introductions for most of the sections; the best books on each subject have been evaluated; step-by-step how-to drawings lead you from beginning to end. We've also included plant societies, magazines, and gardens to visit—all to lead you to sources for even more information about growing plants.
