If the past reflects the futurei¼Œ historians ought to be the best fortune-tellersi¼Œ Robert Newton thought as he swatted a mosquito at the back of his neck. The insect had already pierced his skin and sucked in enough blood to become a crimson smear on his palm. He glanced at iti¼Œ aware that it was his own blood. The insects had already gotten a lot of his blood over the past three daysi¼Œ and Newton figured he would be anemic before they returned to Mexico City.

 Seeing himself panting and sweating in a tropical jungle in southern Mexico was one thing he hadn t included in his plans. A high school history teacher from Chaskai¼¢ Minnesotai¼¢ Newton had wanted to do something different during his summer vacation months. He had saved as much money as possible-- no easy task on the meager salary of a schoolteacher--for his big adventure in Mexico. Divorced for more than a yeari¼¢ he had been looking forward to his first big vacation as a swinging bachelor far from the eyes and ears of the Chaska Board of Edu-
